Liz Rosenberg's debut adult novel, a family drama of loss and redemption, follows a 46-year-old wife and mother named Eve living in Binghamton, N.Y. As Eve is preparing for a garage sale, her husband, Chuck, walks out on her and their two children. Rosenberg skillfully describes Eve's descent into depression and its accompanying weight loss and diminished self-esteem: “Time was ...

Liz Rosenberg's 'Home Repair' is filled with loss and ...

Home Repair is the story of what it means to experience love and loss, and yet still find fulfillment in the small things that life offers. Liz Rosenberg's prose reminds me a lot of Anne Tyler – the quirky, lovable characters and matter of fact narrative of ordinary life peppered with all the sadness and laughter that comes with it, ring true.
